On the Subject of Edgework

You would think that the ports on the side of the bomb are used for something other than just for answering questions...

- Respond to the computer prompts by pressing the button corresponding to the answer of the question on the main display.
- There are three questions asked every time the module activates.